From Comedy to Corporation:

Whether on stage making people laugh or in the workplace making money, the principles of success are the same. Thinking quickly and creatively, listening and working effectively with others, and controlling your attitude and focus are skills that lead to improv comedy success. These same skills, however, can lead to a happier, more productive, more satisfied workplace.

Join professional speaker Avish Parashar as he uses the tools and principles of improv comedy to share these key fundamentals. While the session will be filled with fun and laughter, attendees will also walk away with multiple real-world techniques that they can apply immediately to both themselves and their organizations.

About our Speaker:

Avish Parashar

Avish began his involvement with improv comedy as a freshman at the University of Pennsylvania. After graduation, he remained in Philadelphia and formed Polywumpus Improv Comedy in 1996. He has served as both artistic director and business manager since its inception. In 2002, he stopped performing to focus exclusively on developing seminars and training programs.

In the early years of Polywumpus, Avish worked in the technology departments of Chase Manhattan Bank and CHOP. While working in these large company environments, he developed an understanding of the importance of personal power and teamwork. This work experience also gave him a clear understanding of how improv comedy applies to many situations beyond the stage.

Currently, Avish works with Temple University's Full Circle Theater, an intergenerational improvisational theater troupe that uses improv comedy to address social issues for audiences.

Avish has combined years of experience in improv comedy, corporate America and martial arts to create unique seminars and workshops, and has brought these seminars to companies such as the University of Pennsylvania; Xerox; AstraZeneca; Wharton; Erlanger Medical Center; and Commerce Bank.
